

Dual Submission Rules

1. You must first submit the paper to the Cambridge Corporate Finance Theory Symposium using the website of the Cambridge Endowment for Research in Finance (www.cerf.cam.ac.uk). You must indicate with your submission to the symposium that you wish your paper to be considered by the Journal of Corporate Finance under the dual review process. The deadline for submission to the conference is 25 February 2019.
2. Dual submissions will first be reviewed by the conference program committee before they can be submitted to the Journal. The corresponding author of papers that do not make it through this first stage will be notified around 30 April 2019 by the conference organizers. No reviews will be provided.
3. The corresponding author of papers that pass the first stage will be notified around 30 April 2018, and will be invited to submit their paper to the Journal of Corporate Finance using the journal's regular submission system by 1 July 2019. (<https://www.journals.elsevier.com/journal-of-corporate-finance/>). You should indicate in your cover letter that your paper is being considered for presentation at the Cambridge Corporate Finance Theory Symposium. You will be required to pay the usual non-refundable submission fee and your paper will be entered into the Journal's standard reviewing process. Therefore, an invitation to submit the paper to the Journal does not mean that the paper will be published.
4. Papers submitted for dual consideration at the Journal of Corporate Finance must not be under review at that journal as a regular submission nor at any another journal until the dual submission process ends with a notification from the sponsoring editor of the Journal of Corporate Finance. Papers cannot be submitted for dual consideration at the Journal of Corporate Finance if they are simultaneously under dual consideration at another journal or if they have been previously rejected by the Journal of Corporate Finance.
5. If your paper is rejected under the dual submission process (at any point in time), then you are free to submit it, unchanged if you like and without prejudice, to the Journal of Corporate Finance via the standard submission process.
6. Decisions on acceptance of a paper to the symposium do not depend on whether a paper has also been submitted to the Journal of Corporate Finance.
