WRDS usage: 2017-2018
Introduction

On behalf of the students, researchers, faculty, and staff of the University of Cambridge I’d like to again offer our thanks to CERF for their continued support and funding for these specialist financial datasets available through the WRDS platform.

Users of WRDS represent a complex Cambridge community.

Our Faculty and PhD accounts show an appetite for detailed financial data, directing their company, industry or macroeconomic research. Others utilise the many data points available across these datasets to test complex algorithms in disciplines outside the usual market of Economics and Finance students. Access to these datasets is provided by the Information & Library Services team at Judge Business School. The partnership of CERF’s funding of these datasets, and the I&LS team’s practical expertise mean we are able to offer access to more students, researchers and classes than ever before

2017-18 initiatives

The CJBS continue to work closely with colleagues at the Faculty of Economics and Land Economy to promote WRDS use. WRDS is now used on taught and research courses at both these departments.

CJBS has purchased additional datasets accessed through WRDS. These are specialist products aimed at Faculty and post-doc researchers but open to all. There are plans to offer access to two more products this year with access to some of our most popular databases like Capital IQ and SNL through the platform as they become available.

Highlights since Michaelmas 2017

- 1126 unique data queries run
- Increased use of WRDS specialist help guides. 56 guides were downloaded in total.
- Overall web usage by session was stable
- Continued heavy data use from Land Economy: a single Fellow student accessed over 16 million points of data
- WRDS used by College researchers for the first time

Who are our users?

The Information & Library Services Team at Cambridge Judge Business School administer the WRDS data interface and the datasets contained therein on behalf of the University of Cambridge. WRDS data is available for academics and PhD students through individual accounts, and to taught and research MPhil students as part of ‘class accounts’. These class accounts offer an easy way for researchers at the beginning of their academic career to access complex financial data and offer an opportunity for course leaders to include and place a strong emphasis on sophisticated interrogation of real data as part of their teaching and assessment.

We currently have 129 active users of the WRDS platform, mostly registered to either University faculty or PhD students.

Individual accounts

Our WRDS subscription supports research across a range of University faculties and departments. We have a strong presence in Business, Economics and Land Economy, but we also support researchers working in fields as diverse as Astronomy, Mathematics, and Politics. Conversations with these students reveal that WRDS data has been used for deciding if University innovations can succeed in the market, and as raw data to test conceptual models and prototypes.

WRDS offers access to complex, historical, financial data that is often exhaustive in its coverage and cannot be found elsewhere. The data is aimed at postgraduate-level study and above.

How is the WRDS platform used?

The WRDS platform can be accessed through its website https://wrds-web.wharton.upenn.edu or through a SSH client. The majority of users access the datasets through a browser.

Usage data for those using the WRDS website is much more detailed than those accessing via SSH connection. The website data is described in detail below, but for a complete picture the raw query counts (including SSH queries) are as follows:

Looking back through the past four years, it is easy so see that usage is occasionally spiked by a particularly enthusiastic researcher relying on this data for a project or thesis. Although use has not been as high this year as last, we’re pleased with the wider use across the Cambridge community.

The last academic year saw the Information & Library Services team add to the WRDS portfolio by buying a selection of specialist datasets aimed at Faculty use. These datasets run on the WRDS base platform paid for by CERF and would not be accessible without your backing. These datasets are available to all University members.
